

Reinforcing Resilience: Supporting Corporate Clients in the Adoption of Digital Solutions

May 10, 2023

Are banks struggling to get corporates to adopt their digital solutions? It's no surprise that corporates are at different stages of digital maturity, and some are not willing to try new digital solutions. Banks that deploy a one-size-fits-all approach may find it's not the best solution for a heterogeneous clientele.

So, how can banks create digital solutions that cater to the unique needs of corporates? Here we explore three questions that can help banks design digital solutions that will benefit from high adoption rates, from quantifying the benefits of self-service capabilities to ensuring ease of implementation and having a solid backup plan.

Satisfaction with the Digitalization of the End-to-End Implementation Process

Note: United States based on interviews with 307 corporates with annual revenues of USD 2 billion or more. Western Europe based on interviews with 417 corporates with annual revenues of EUR 2 billion or more.
Source: Coalition Greenwich Voice of Client – 2022 U.S. and European Large Corporate Cash Management Studies

1. What Does the Client Need?

As an essential principle of entrepreneurship, developing a solution to a problem requires understanding the needs of the client. However, many corporates feel that banks' digital capabilities are challenging to use and require outsourcing technical support to understand the impact to their internal systems/processes and implement the solution.

In addition, the corporate may not fully understand the benefit of adoption, which may trigger reluctance to adopt. While there are a growing number of corporates wanting to be at the forefront of digital transformation, for the majority, “good enough” is still the standard, especially if starved of resources and digital in-house expertise.

As a result, corporates are increasingly seeking tailored solutions and products that respond specifically to their needs. While banks may do this for the largest wallets in the market, the rest of the corporate world does not receive the same level of personalization for their solutions.

To address this issue, banks should adopt a three-step approach:

1. Ensure that corporates understand the quantifiable benefits of using the digital solution.
2. Incorporate any feedback received from clients and close the feedback loop to keep clients informed about any changes to the solution.
3. Develop an agile approach to adding functionalities as they go, but be considerate of the timing of launch.

Reputation and trust are the main drivers of sustainable adoption. If the beta version of the solution is not good enough and clients do not like it, relationship managers and product specialists may face challenges in regaining their trust and convincing them to try again. This effort could be better utilized for other opportunities.

The Rise of Self-Service

Self-service capabilities are a prime example of how banks are transferring the workload from themselves to their corporate clients in a rush to optimize expenses. However, this approach can backfire if it becomes overbearing for the corporate.

It's like the self-service checkout option in supermarkets, where customers have to scan and pack their goods themselves without any immediate benefit. Similarly, when developing self-service functionality, banks must ensure that they do not burden the corporates with additional tasks.

Instead, they should focus on quantifying the benefits of their self-service capabilities, such as reducing the number of clicks or minimizing the time spent on the phone. By doing so, banks can support corporates' adoption of their self-service solutions, ensuring that they do not become a source of frustration or additional work for the client.

2. How is the Client Supported?

Once a digital solution has been developed, the next step is to support the client in adopting it. Ideally, the solution should be so user-friendly that it does not require any training or implementation. However, in some cases, implementation may be necessary. Banks need to ensure that the process is easy, quick and cost-effective for their clients.

In Europe, only 36% of corporates are satisfied with the digitalization of the onboarding process, versus 47% in the U.S.

According to our most recent Large Corporate Cash Management Study, global results show a general dissatisfaction with the entire onboarding process. Despite the importance of ease of implementation as a key decision factor when selecting a new banking provider, satisfaction with the digitalization of this process is very low. In Europe, only 36% of corporates are satisfied with this driver, while in the US, the figure is 47%.

It is essential for banks to address this issue and ensure that their corporate clients are able to successfully adopt their digital solutions. Learn more about this topic in our recent report, As Challenges Mount, Corporates Seek Enhanced Support from Their Banks.

How Digital Onboarding Capabilities Helped Banks Win after SVB's Collapse

The fallout triggered by the likes of SVB, Silvergate and Signature Bank earlier this year left many clients without an alternative banking provider due to their credit policy requirements. Banks worldwide faced an opportunity to gather these wallets, but how quickly could they make clients fully functional?

In times of crisis, there is always a winner—and the winning banks in this situation were not only those deemed as low-risk “safe havens,” but those that could open an account and allow their clients to be operational in days. This is an example of how ease of doing business and digital onboarding capabilities can play a differentiator role.

3. What is the Back-Up Plan?

In today's digital age, technical difficulties are a common occurrence. From server outages to software bugs, anything can happen at any time. But what happens if your client is in the middle of a digital process when something goes wrong?

This is where having a solid backup plan comes into play. As in most real-life situations, if the client has to essentially change its engine mid-air, it is crucial for banks to ensure that their clients can continue their journey analog and not have to restart from scratch. This is essential to manage execution risk and can save time and frustration for both the client and the bank.

In addition, having a resilient infrastructure is critical for building trust with clients. If outages occur frequently, it can inhibit corporates' willingness to test out new digital solutions.

By understanding their clients' unique needs, quantifying the benefits of self-service capabilities, providing easy implementation and support, and having a solid backup plan, banks can increase adoption rates and reinforce resilience. With the rise of digital transformation and the increasing demand for tailored solutions, banks must stay ahead of the curve and meet their clients' evolving needs.

www.greenwich.com | ContactUs@greenwich.com

Coalition Greenwich, a division of CRISIL, an S&P Global Company, is a leading global provider of strategic benchmarking, analytics and insights to the financial services industry.

We specialize in providing unique, high-value and actionable information to help our clients improve their business performance.

Our suite of analytics and insights encompass all key performance metrics and drivers: market share, revenue performance, client relationship share and quality, operational excellence, return on equity, behavioral drivers, and industry evolution.

About CRISIL

CRISIL is a leading, agile and innovative global analytics company driven by its mission of making markets function better. It is majority owned by S&P Global Inc., a leading provider of transparent and independent ratings, benchmarks, analytics, and data to the capital and commodity markets worldwide.

CRISIL is India's foremost provider of ratings, data, research, analytics, and solutions with a strong record of growth, culture of innovation, and global footprint.

It has delivered independent opinions, actionable insights and efficient solutions to over 100,000 customers through businesses that operate from India, the U.S., the U.K., Argentina, Poland, China, Hong Kong, and Singapore.

For more information, visit www.crisil.com

Disclaimer and Copyright

This Document is prepared by Coalition Greenwich, which is a part of CRISIL Ltd, an S&P Global company. All rights reserved. This Document may contain analysis of commercial data relating to revenues, productivity and headcount of financial services organisations (together with any other commercial information set out in the Document). The Document may also include statements, estimates and projections with respect to the anticipated future performance of certain companies and as to the market for those companies' products and services.

The Document does not constitute (or purport to constitute) an accurate or complete representation of past or future activities of the businesses or companies considered in it but rather is designed to only highlight the trends. This Document is not (and does not purport to be) a comprehensive Document on the financial state of any business or company. The Document represents the views of Coalition Greenwich as on the date of the Document and Coalition Greenwich has no obligation to update or change it in the light of new or additional information or changed circumstances after submission of the Document.

This Document is not (and does not purport to be) a credit assessment or investment advice and should not form basis of any lending, investment or credit decision. This Document does not constitute nor form part of an offer or invitation to subscribe for, underwrite or purchase securities in any company. Nor should this Document, or any part of it, form the basis to be relied upon in any way in connection with any contract relating to any securities. The Document is not an investment analysis or research and is not subject to regulatory or legal obligations on the production of, or content of, investment analysis or research.

The data in this Document may reflect the views reported to Coalition Greenwich by the research participants. Interviewees may be asked about their use of and demand for financial products and services and about investment practices in relevant financial markets. Coalition Greenwich compiles the data received, conducts statistical analysis and reviews for presentation purposes to produce the final results.

THE DOCUMENT IS COMPILED FROM SOURCES COALITION GREENWICH BELIEVES TO BE RELIABLE. COALITION GREENWICH DISCLAIMS ALL REPRESENTATIONS OR WARRANTIES, EXPRESSED OR IMPLIED, WITH RESPECT TO THIS DOCUMENT, INCLUDING AS TO THE VALIDITY, ACCURACY, REASONABLENESS OR COMPLETENESS OF THE INFORMATION, STATEMENTS, ASSESSMENTS, ESTIMATES AND PROJECTIONS, ANY WARRANTIES OF MERCHANTABILITY OR FITNESS FOR A PARTICULAR PURPOSE ARISING OUT OF THE USE OF ALL OR ANY OF THIS DOCUMENT. COALITION GREENWICH ACCEPTS NO LIABILITY WHATSOEVER FOR ANY DIRECT, INDIRECT OR CONSEQUENTIAL LOSS OR DAMAGE OF ANY KIND ARISING OUT OF THE USE OF ALL OR ANY OF THIS DOCUMENT.

Coalition Greenwich is a part of CRISIL Ltd, an S&P Global company. ©2024 CRISIL Ltd. All rights reserved.